Effective with the fall 1995 semester, students enrolled in distance learning receive site courses are counted as part of the enrollment of the university that is broadcasting the course, regardless of where the receive sites are located.
- A summary profile of distance learning students is as follows:
 - 82% are part-time
 - 75% are associate or non-degree
 - 79% are women
 - 80% are 23 years of age or older (54% are 31 years of age or older)

SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT
Distance Learning Receive Site Report

The following table provides a summary profile of students taking a distance education course (i.e. through Interactive Television, the Internet or another delivery mode). Students taking an ITV course at the broadcast sites, i.e. the classroom at which the course originated, are excluded as the broadcast course represents a traditional university course that would have historically been offered whether or not ITV existed.

This table shows all students taking at least one distance education course, whether they are taking only distance education courses or are taking distance education courses and at least one non-distance education course. There are 2,450 students that are taking only distance learning courses and no other courses.

There are a total of 3,481 students taking distance learning courses in Fall 2003, up from 3,221 in Fall 2002. Distance learning credits were 14,696 compared to 13,211 in Fall 2002.

The students shown in the following table have already been counted in the enrollment figures in all other tables. These numbers should not be added to previously reported university enrollment figures.
